Sonoma County Governments, Businesses to Unveil Climate Protection Achievements, Goals

Third Annual Climate Protection Conference Set for June 4

Santa Rosa, CA – Local governments, industry and businesses from throughout Sonoma County will join together on June 4 at Windsor High School for the third annual Climate Protection: Everybody Profits III Conference. Three years ago, local governments and businesses in Sonoma County challenged one another to reduce their “carbon footprint” by developing strategies to become sustainable. At this year’s conference, a snapshot of progress toward developing and implementing those goals of establishing sustainability in our community will be unveiled.

Eileen Tutt, Assistant Secretary for Climate Change Activities for the California Environmental Protection Agency, will be the keynote speaker at the conference. Presenters, speakers and sponsors include each of the cities in Sonoma County, PG&E, Alternative Energy, Inc., Climate Protection Campaign, ABAG Energy Watch, Agilent Technologies, Bay Area Air Quality Management District, Green Valley Consulting Engineers, Quantum Energy Services and Technologies, Inc., Sierra Club, Veloia Environnement, Sonoma County Water Agency, and more.
